The winery is situated in an area less usual for viticulture: on the foothills of the Val d'Orcia, near the borders of Tuscany, Umbria and Lazio. Producer and owner Andrea Franchetti is an extraordinary figure, a proponent of a very specific style. It was he who bought the farm in the 1980s, planting the first vineyards ten years later. Situated at the foot of Monte Cetona, the estate includes a great variety of soils on which Cabernet Franc and Merlot, Cabernet Sauvignon and Petit Verdot are cultivated. A blend of all four varieties cultivated, the Tenuta di Trinoro '18 is a magnificent wine. A kaleidoscopic bouquet unveils hints of flowers and potpourri, golden-leaf tobacco, medicinal herbs and delicious, ripe fruit. In the mouth it exhibits structure and energy; its soft, firm and broad body is topped off by a very long finish. The Bianco '19 is very gratifying as well, a monovarietal Semillon that charms with its uncommon aromatic qualities.
